P.219 In connection with the visit of part of the Russian fleet in San Francisco 1863

" few americans visited the Russian ships, despite the invitations that were extended. Newspaper reporters called a few times, merchants & Chinese laundrymen. The Russians were so pleased with a Dr. Chapka, who had none of the rudeness to be found in most Californians that they made him their guest of honor - until San Francisco port authorities informed the Russians that 'Dr. Chapka was' a bits of a male mid-wife, with a most unsavory reputation" (angyalcsinálo)
