

EHRlich

Ehrlich (är'-likh), Alfred Heinrich,
1822-1898.

Hungarian pianist and writer, who was born in Vienna. He studied piano with Henselt and Thalberg, and composition with Sechter. Was Court pianist to King George V.

Ehrlich composed a few works for the piano, comprising Concertstück in Ungarischer Weise; variations on an Original Theme; and some studies; but his reputation is greater as an author and critic. He was a man of versatile talents, and while in Hanover was political correspondent to the Allgemeine Zeitung and later musical critic for several Berlin periodicals. He wrote musical novels, and a number of works on musical aesthetics.
