Hungarian Decides to Be Citizen Because
She's Regarded as Pal

The average American male's attitude toward the fair sex—"They treat you like a pal, and I love it"—made Eva Gabor, Hungarian screen player, decide to make the United States her home.

The petite blond actress made this clear when she appeared before immigration authorities at the Federal Building yesterday to apply for second citizenship papers.

Miss Gabor made her appearance dressed in a patriotic ensemble—checked tailored suit, red, white and blue accessories and a hat to match. She is under contract to Paramount studio.
