A man and his camera were in Hungary last October. The camera took pictures of events as they happened, and the man wrote this first eye-witness report of the Freedom Revolution. Both words and pictures tell a thought-provoking story.

1957 March

Here is a message from the Freedom Fighters of Hungary—as seen and told in words and pictures by Andor Heller, ace Budapest news photographer. This man was on the streets of Budapest day and night, taking pictures of the uprisings. He saw freedom rise from the ashes of Communism in Hungary. He saw students, workers, men, women, old and young, die for a freedom about which they had only heard from others. He saw brave people become heroes overnight. With his own eyes and his own camera's eyes, he saw Hungary's Freedom Revolution. This man's story will stir the hearts and consciences of people everywhere.
