Jones to Secy of State Cass

(P. 196: "In a personal interview I had with Count Reichberg:")

"The conversation then turned upon the war just closed. He said Kossuth had been paid 3,000,000 to agitate the revolution in Hungary, which was mainly intended to bring Austria to speedy terms, and that Kossuth was privy to all this and had no expectations of effecting anything in Hungary. That Prince Metternich, just deceased, had a letter of Kossuth's in his possession which would settle his character with the Republican world if published, but that the Prince positively refused to give it to the public, though he had tried hard to obtain his consent... "

(This conversation took place after the treaty of Villa Franca)
