

LEFKOVITS

#1901

LEFKOVITS, Aaron Melchior. M.D.

Dr. Aaron Melchior Lefkovits, of Memphis, Tennessee, is a Medical Doctor specializing in Internal Medicine and Rheumatology. He was educated at Columbia University, College of the City of New York, New York Hom. Medical College and Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospital. He has been affiliated with Memphis Academy of Internal Medicine, Memphis Heart Association; New York Medical College and Flower-Fifth Avenue Hospital; Mt. Sinai Hospital, New York; American Rheumatism Association; American Federation for Clinical Research; Memphis and Shelby County Medical Society; University of Tennessee Medical School; Sigma Xi, Tennessee Medical Units; and the American Medical Association. Dr. Lefkovits served in the United States Army, emerging as a Lieutenant Colonel. Dr. Lefkovits occupied positions of Chief, Cardiovascular Section 210 General Hospital and Van Horn Station Hospital and Chief, General Medical Regional Hospital, Blanding, Florida. He holds titles and honors including Chief, General Medical and Rheumatic Section, VA Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee; Assistant Professor of Medicine, University of Tennessee School of Medicine; and Diplomate, American Board of Internal Medicine. Dr. Lefkovits is currently affiliated with Veterans Administration Hospital, Memphis, Tennessee, and City of Memphis Hospitals. Dr. Lefkovits has contributed articles to over thirty professional medical publications. Two of these are "The Liver in Rheumatoid Arthritis," Ann. Rheum. Dis. 14:162, June, 1955 and "Rheumatoid Spondylitis; Manifestations and Management," Ann. Int. Med. 49:89, July, 1952. He was born in Malca, Hungary, in 1901, to Abraham and Fannie Lefkovits. He is married to the former Lola Ruth Hand and has a son, Albert, and a daughter, Pearl.

*The Biogr. En cycl. of the U.S.
Vol. 4, p. 831.*